The university development program alad centers attention on the effort to retain county zoning when it comes up for a vote at the Aug. 14 meeting of the County Board of Supervisors. Zoning is still regarded as essential for the unhampered growth of the university. Because of this and many other reasons, continuation of zoning is vital to all Madison county residents.

Newly-Purchased Museum

Success of the first phase of the Madison county museum fund drive is heartening news—both for the general public and for all who have aided in the effort to establish a museum that can be open; all suitable dipplays.

Purchase of the 127-year-old Weir mansion is a major accomplishment, but it will be equally important to provide enough funds to fireproof and redecorate the building and to purchase necessary display cases and equipment. While $6000 was raised by the county sequicentennial celebration and another $22,000 has been contributed, nearly supervisors.

As leaders of the drive have pointed out, "Contributors to the museum fund are making history right now." If the $40,000 goal is met, the county will have a center of significant educational benefit to both youngsters and adults. The need for further giving is particularly apparent in Grantie City, where the museum campaign has been lagging.
